Hi Bob,

By upper management I mean Elizabeth or Shan. Both were involved in the opening of the unit as it was a long time ago.

Do you plan to resolve this any time in the near future? If not please let me know as I will need to make another plan. My soon-to-be husband does not want our joint credit score to suffer from this.

Please let me know if you plan to take this off my hands. I really don't think it's fair I have to deal with this as I am no longer employed by or being paid for my time by this company.

Thanks,
Sam

Thanks,
Sam

Hi Robert

Thanks for your response.

Elizabeth Kennedy LLC misled me when I opened this unit by upper management. I was under the impression I was merely the contact person and only found out I was the owner after I had resigned from EKLLC.

As a majority owner of LLC, I kindly request that you take care of this issue ASAP. May I also kindly remind you that I'm a 24 year old assistant designer, and should not be held responsible for the actions of EK, EK LLC, or any owners of EK LLCs regarding outstanding invoices or any further correspondence between outstanding creditors. I have worked very hard to keep good credit and it is not fair that I am personally liable for the company's financial troubles.

On another note, these goods belong to EKLLC. Im certain that you could sell the gowns and hundreds of yards of fabric and use the profits to pay back some investors, the bank or creditors. There is an inventory list in the office if you'd like to see the exact value of what is in the unit.

Please let me know ASAP if you plan to resolve this.

Thanks,
Sam

This is the result of your being cheated by whomever at the company told you to put this in your name. You should contact that person.

The Company has no funds to pay Gotham, and none of the shareholders were even informed of this storage issue until after Elizabeth took off.

All funds that may come in (there are none at this point) belong to Noah Bank at this point, the secured creditor, and the IRS.

There is an auction to sell the contents at the end of the month. If the auction brings in enough money, the debt will be paid off.

Hi All,

Thank you for this information and clearing everything up!

On another note I have an urgent issue pertaining to EKLLC.

I have received an email from the storage unit that I was the contact for that I am STILL responsible for the payment. I have spoken to the manager several times and he says he transferred the unit over to your company, with Robert as the contact. However, until the payment is made I am still liable and this is going to affect my credit score.

I have been calling the company daily trying to get this sorted out and I'm growing more frustrated. I have stated a new position and don't have the time to continue to deal with this unit. I'm also highly concerned about this affecting my personal credit score as I had no intention of this ever being under my personal name and still am not sure why it was never set up as a business account!

I would greatly appreciate some help with this issue and would love to get it taken care of ASAP before my personal finances are further affected.

Please call me if you have any further details.

Thanks!
Sam

Hi Samantha -

Please find attached your corrected termination letter as well as the copy of your final pay stub(s). You will receive your payment via direct deposit this Wed (2/14/18) coming from Artifact.

If you haven't already received your W-2, it will be sent to you via email as soon as it is available. Some of those are still in process.

Thank you again for your patience while we worked to make this right.

Best,
Rachel
